Mrs. B.R. Cramer spent a few days last week at Loyalist.

What was at first thought to be a big prairie fire on Tuesday evening last, south and east of Monitor proved to be the firing of a large patch of Mustard.

We regret to report that Mr. R. C. A. Beniot suffered an unfortunate accident at the beginning of this week. He was kicked on the right arm and suffered a painful break. He is progressing.

Commencing with this issue we are preparing to run, each week the local Market Report. The prices will be published without prejudice to any party and in the event of a great variance of prices, the highest and lowest will be printed. The prices will be secured as often as possible, on Wednesday.

Don. Leeder returned from Delta on Saturday evening last.

S. Lewis's house on the south end of Pemukan Street, is now rapidly nearing completion. The residence will make a substantial addition to the east side of town.

Mrs. J. Hayes, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Lucas, went to Calgary last week, to meet their Aunt, recently arrived from Vancouver. Unfortunately their aunt was compelled to stay in Calgary owing to illness.

Jos. Hamer received a large consignment of Binders last Monday.

Harvest operations throughout the district are now becoming general. H. L. Crisp commenced cutting his barley crop yesterday, and it is expected that by the beginning of next week wheat will be ready for cutting. In a few cases wheat has already been cut but, we understand, this is due to the crop being somewhat cooked.

Owing to the fact that this paper is the first one to be issued on Thursday, the new paper day, we find that we are a little short on news. We hope our readers will excuse this instance.

We went out to Pemukan early this week and did a little haying on the side. Incidentally we raised a dandy crop out there - of blisters.

The Menace of Bolshevism

During recent months, reference in the press of Canada to the activities of the radical socialist Bolshevik and Communist movements have not been as frequent as was the case a year or so ago, but this does not mean that the menace to our free British institutions has passed. Notwithstanding the anxieties and arduous duties at present imposed on the statesmen of Great Britain because of the troubles in Ireland, the complex problem of world disarmament, and the gigantic financial difficulties to be overcome following the war, leaders in government in the Old Country are not overlooking the danger that still threatens from the Bolshevik propaganda.

A committee of the House of Lords, under the chairmanship of the Duke of Northumberland, spent several months of investigation and research into the activities of these revolutionary organizations and in a report recently issued it is stated that there is overwhelming evidence that an international conspiracy exists which aims at the destruction of all existing institutions of government and society, of all religions, of all moral laws, and all property rights, throughout Great Britain, Canada and other Overseas Dominions.

This report sets forth that the main points in the Revolutionary programme are:—

(1) The national power of Great Britain and other Allied States is to be broken down by the fomenting of internal revolutions, through appeals to class hatred, and by efforts to obtain greater freedom and privileges for one class of people. Governments which are strong are to be weakened by the introduction of Socialism, which will pave the way to anarchy.

(2) Internationalism is to be taught.

(3) In every possible way influence is to be secured over public officials.

(4) As religion is the moral mainstay of all government, it is to be destroyed.

(5) Property owning is to be rendered impossible—by means of a thousand laws, restrictions and taxes, thus bringing about some form of State Socialism, or Communism, or Anarchy.

The Communist Party, directed and subsidized from Moscow, exerts its power through magazines and printed matter, inculcating ideas of Red Revolution into the minds of the people, and by a process known as "boring from within." Communist schools have been established for perverting the young by the teaching of Communism and Atheism. In this connection it is important to note that there are over twenty weekly newspapers in Canada teaching and preaching Socialism and Communism, many of them of the most radical kind.

Despite all his many other duties and responsibilities, David Lloyd George, who is a radical of the sane and progressive type, felt impelled recently to sound a word of warning as to the danger that confronts British institutions from this subtle enemy. The British Prime Minister is reported as saying:

"The military danger is over, but there are greater, more insidious, more permanent dangers still remaining—the dangers that have arisen from the new conditions in this and every land, the new ideas that have arisen, the new organizations that have suddenly risen into great powers. What is the peril? It is the phenomenal rise to power of a new party, with new purposes of the most subversive character. It calls itself Labor, but it is really Socialist.

"If anyone doubts the reality of the danger, I would ask him to read the Socialist and Labor papers. We rarely see them, and we do not quite see what they are after, but what they write in these papers is repeated on hundreds and thousands of platforms, to hundreds and thousands and millions of people. And they are beginning to believe it. Socialism is fighting, and you will find it in these papers—to destroy everything that great prophets and leaders labored for generations to build up. Private enterprise, individual effort, the stimulus of reasonable gain, the present organization of commerce, of industry, of credits—all that goes if this new system which is being preached, succeeds. Even the political liberty which they build up is being threatened."

The old and tried Labor organizations of Canada and the United States are aware of the danger which threatens and are out combating it. The business communities are becoming more and more aware of it. It is time the average man with his little home or half section of land, the men and women who know that in the public school and the church are to be found the real safeguards and guarantees of personal liberty and real political freedom, should bestir themselves and vigorously oppose this enemy to all that is dearest and best in life.

"There's a Reason"

Knew His Name

The Poet Whittier's Dog Was An Intelligent Animal.

During one of the last birthday celebrations of the poet Whittier, he was visited by a celebrated oratorio singer. The lady was asked to sing, and, seating herself at the piano, she began the beautiful ballad, "Robin Adair." She had hardly begun when Mr. Whittier's pet dog came into the room and, seating himself by her side, watched her as if fascinated, and listened with a delight unusual for an animal. When she finished he came and put his paw very gravely into her hand and licked her cheek. "Robin takes that as a tribute to himself," said Mr. Whittier. "He also is a 'Robin Adair.'" The dog, hearing his own name, evidently considered that he was the hero of the song. From that moment, during the lady's visit, he was her devoted attendant. He kept by her side when she was indoors, and accompanied her when she went to walk. When she went away, he carried her satchel to his mouth to the gate, and watched her departure with every evidence of distress.—St. Nicholas.

PAINFUL DIARRHOEA CRAMPS IN STOMACH

Mr. Fred Funston, Craik, Sask., writes:—"A year ago last harvest I was taken with a sudden attack of diarrhoea which completely laid me out, and in a few hours I had to quit work. The cramps in my stomach were dreadful, the beads of perspiration would stand out on my face at times I was in such great distress. At last I got a chance to send to town for a couple of bottles of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. I used it according to the way I found it, and soon obtained a great change for the better, for which I was very thankful. I don't know what the cause of my sickness was except the extremely hot weather and the active work of stooking the wheat.

Several of my neighbors were taken the same as myself and had the doctor attend them, but they didn't get any great relief until I advised them to use "Dr. Fowler's." They soon experienced a great change. Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry has been on the market for the past 76 years and many cheap imitations are being offered to the public.

The Chinese are ahead of the world in the preparation of roast pork for the table. After it has come out of the oven, it is hung in the smoke of various aromatic herbs, which gives it a delicious flavor and robs it of the porky taste which is offensive to some palates.

SUMMER HEAT HARD ON BABY

No season of the year is so dangerous to the life of little ones as is the summer. The excessive heat throws the little stomach out of order so quickly that unless prompt aid is at hand the baby may be beyond all human help before the mother realizes he is ill. Summer is the season when diarrhoea, cholera infantum, dysentery and colic are most prevalent. Any one of these troubles may prove deadly if not properly treated. During the summer the mothers' best friend is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the bowels, soothe the stomach and keep baby healthy. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A Successful Family

He was a young artist, and although a very gifted man, the world had not yet recognized what a man they had amongst them.

Still, success was coming his way little by little, and he was proudly telling his life story to a patron.

"A few years ago," he asserted, "I was quite unknown, but now my work is hung on the line!"

Then a bitter thought flittered through his brain, and he added: "So is my wife's."—London Answers.

Drink Water When Tired.

Dr. Eliza E. Mosher urged lately the members of the Women's Medical Society of New York, to drink a glass of water at 10 a.m. and others at 3, 4 and 5 p.m. This, she told them, would dilute the products of fatigue which were entering the blood and causing the tired feeling.

Saskatchewan Grain Man Found Operation Was Not Necessary

"I was doubtful about Tanlac until I tried it myself and now I know it does everything that is claimed for it," said Jacob Popp, well-known and prosperous grain grower of McNutt, Sask.

"I had a bad form of stomach trouble for sixteen years, which was steadily growing worse as time passed. I did not dare eat heavy food or pastry and at times I couldn't retain a thing on my stomach, not even a glass of water. I would blast up with gas until my heart would beat like a trip-hammer and I used to have awful pains in my chest as well as in the pit of my stomach. My liver was all out of order and I was bothered a good deal with headaches. I was in such a bad fix I could scarcely sleep at night or work during the day. In fact, I spent two weeks in the hospital and thought an operation was going to be necessary. Luckily, the operation was deferred and as soon as I left the hospital, I began taking Tanlac.

"I can hardly realize that so little medicine could do as much good as Tanlac has for me. After I took only three bottles, I gained twenty-eight pounds in weight and am eating, sleeping and working better than I have in many years. Tanlac is truly a remarkable medicine."

Tanlac is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

The Keeping Of Poultry

Pamphlet Tells How Poultry Can Be Made to Pay.

If resident in either town or country and you wish to know how best to keep poultry and secure the most satisfactory results, consult a pamphlet treating of the subject prepared by the Dominion Poultry Husbandman, F. C. Elford, and recently issued by the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa. The pamphlet can be had free on applications to the Publications Branch. It tells of how poultry can be made to pay, how the birds should be housed and fed, how they should be treated in winter and summer, how to commence keeping in a small way, the equipment that is desirable, how to choose a breed, how to hatch and rear, and how to gather, keep, or market the eggs. In short all the essentials to success in poultry keeping for home consumption or selling are clearly and explicitly explained. In the term poultry are included turkeys, geese, ducks, guinea fowls and pigeons, the raising and care of which are fully discussed. Numerous illustrations of types of birds, and of methods of housing and feeding contribute to make the pamphlet an invaluable compendium on poultry-keeping and marketing.

WEEDS

Start a Bank account from the Judicial use of Weeds. The much despised Pig Weed can be made a revenue producer if raised for pigs, cut for hay when green, for winter-feed for chickens, Pigs, cattle and sheep. The second crop supplements the dried up pasture to keep the milk supply up when other districts have no cream to sell. Save the pig weed seed, and sow it as a cover crop for seeding tame grasses, or for hay. Then when you build the $50 silo every known weed even cactus and Russian thistle makes silage Pig Weed would be the cheapest. Look at the summer-fallow. Pig weed starts first. The most beautiful green in Monitor is the pig weed. Nature is showing you a quick-growing, sure, juicy forage crop adapted for sand blow-outs, or burn outs. BUT weeds and grain must not grow together.

Make these side lines of farming pay. I again appeal to the women and children. There should be 20,000 turkeys raised in this district next year, to eat the grasshoppers. There should be a big incubator hatching centre or centres, where the eggs can be taken and hatched, and then taken back to the farm as day old chicks, turkeys, goslings and ducks, and when part grown, put out in small movable colony houses and moved to the hoppers—the Government, through the egg circle, market the produce for you. Every farm should have some guinea hens to warn the other poultry of the approach of hawks: coyotes or other enemies. Also guinea hens sell well as substitutes for game of all kinds. There should be 50 or 100 bushels of potatoes and other winter vegetables raised to sell on every farm and all bunched in ear lots. Monitor imported several cars of potatoes and they were bought by farmers. The prospective garden should be covered by rotted manure and plowed and packed this fall, then for potatoes next spring disc-harrow and mark out the rows, drop the seed and cover with straw. This sandy soil should be a quick grower if some moisture is stored up.

In these side issues, don't plough heavy but have something of everything to sell as wool cream and eggs—make money out of the little items of farming. Start the bank account with it and then get on a cash basis. You can't ask for lower prices on what you buy when you are being grubstaked on time. Get the hens ready for winter laying by trapping gophers. Cut them open and let the hens eat them to hurry the moult, as they need meat from now on to grow the feathers fast. Two small chicken houses are better than one big one, as the pullets should be separate from the hens—have them both on the south side of the barn.

Ball Gossip

With the exception of two postponed games one with Veteran and the other with Loyalist the result of which is practically a foregone conclusion, the League games for the season are over. Monitor coming out on top with a perfect average—1000; and outside of the few games that may perhaps be played here from time to time the ball team bids farewell to the fans. The season has without doubt, seen some splendid playing, not only by our own team, but by the opposing teams as well. Of course, there were several changes and alternations in the line up of the team, that might have improved the general playing, such as batting practice and general training, but still at that the result has been highly satisfactory. The manager of the team, Mr. M. A. VanHorn has spared neither time or money to get together a perfectly working team, and his efforts deserve the highest praise not only from the team but from the fans as well. The Homesteaders

ROBERT J. C. STEAD

Darkness was settling down—darkness of the seventh night since their departure from Emerson—when, like a mole on the face of the plain, a little grey lump grew on the horizon. Arthur rose in his sleigh and waved his fur cap in the air; Harris sent back an answering cheer; the women plied their husbands with questions; even the horses took on new energy, and plunged desperately through the frozen snow which one moment supported their weight and the next splintered in broken ice-cakes beneath them. Slowly the mole grew until in the gathering shadows it took on indistinctly the shape of a building, and just as the rising moon crested the ridge of the prairie behind the travellers swung up at the door. Arthur had carried the key of the padlock in his hand for the last mile; everybody was out of the sleighs in a moment, and the next they were stamping their cramped feet on the cold wooden floor of the little shack. Arthurs walked unerringly to a nail on the wall and took down a lantern; its dull flame drove the mist slowly down the glass, and presently the light was beating back from the glistening frost which sparkled on every log of the little room.

"Well, here we are in Hungry Hall," said Arthur. "Everything just as I left it." Then, turning to his wife, "Come, Lil," he said, "perhaps you have an engagement of your own." He took his wife in a passionate embrace and planted a fervent kiss upon her lips, while Harris followed his example. Then they sat down on the boxes that served for chairs, amid a happiness too deep for words. So a few minutes passed until Mrs. Arthurs sprang to her feet. "Why, Mary," she exclaimed, "I do believe you're crying," while the moisture glistened on her own cheeks. "Now, you men, clear out! I suppose you think the horses will stable themselves? Yes, I see you have the box full of wood, Fred. That's not so bad for a start. Leave some matches, and say, you might just get our boxes in here. Remember we've lived in these clothes for the best part of two weeks."

The young men sprang to their task, and as soon as they were out of the house the girls threw their arms about each other and wept like women together. It was only for a moment; a quick dash of the hand across the eyes, and both were busy removing coats and wraps. The door opened, and their "boxes," as well as other equipment from the sleighs, were carried in, and the men disappeared to the little stable at the back of the house. After several attempts the girls succeeded in starting a fire in the rusted stove, and soon its grateful heat was radiating to every corner of the room. As they busied themselves unpacking dishes and provisions they had opportunity to take observations of the new place that for one was to be a home and for the other a very welcome haven in a strange land.

The house was built of poplar logs, hewed and dovetailed at the corners with the skill of the Ontario woodman. It was about twelve by sixteen feet in size, with collar-beams eight feet from the floor. The roof was of two thicknesses of elm boards. The door was in the east side, near the southeast corner; the stove stood about the centre of the east wall. The only window was in the south side, panes of eight-by-ten glass sufficed for light. Through this window another lantern shone back from the darkness, and the flickering light from the stove danced in duplicate. A rough board table sat under the window; a nail box in the southwest corner evidently served as cupboard. No tools or movables of any value had been left in the place, Arthurs having stored such effects with a neighbor, some dozen miles away, lest they be stolen from the cabin by some unscrupulous traveller during his absence.

"I like the plan of it very much," said Mrs. Arthurs, after a general survey of the room. "Don't you think Fred has shown good judgment in the design? This—indicating the door—will be my reception-room. And this, a little further in, is the parlor. The kitchen and pantry are right at hand—so convenient for the maid in serving, you know. And then our room. Fred and I will have the long room in the northwest wing, while you, of course, will occupy the guest-chamber in the northeast. Do not be alarmed, my dear; if the silence of the prairies weighs too heavily upon you we shall be reaching home. The bath may be taken from either room with equal convenience."

Both laughed, but Mary, more serious and sober-minded, was already slicing ham and preparing a fry-pat. "We need water, Lil—get some snow while I find the tea. The bread is hard, but there'll be coals presently, and we shall have toast. Lucky there were baked potatoes left over from last night's camp; they'll fry up fine along with this." But already Lil was outside gathering snow.

She returned in breathless excitement. "Oh, Mary, I've just had a great thought. All my wedding china—present, you know—is in that box, and I have my wedding clothes, too. Have you yours?"

"Of course. But why?"

"Why, dear, don't you see? The men are busy shovelling a path into the stable. It'll be an hour yet before they are in. Let's put on our wedding dresses, and set the table with our best dishes and best linen, just for a kind of post-nuptial. Let's!"

"But ham and fried potatoes?"

"And toast. I didn't you promise toast? And tea. And I'll wager there's some jam among these provisions. Oh, let's hurry."

An hour later, when the hungry men returned after making their horses and cattle comfortable, they stopped in amazement at the sight that confronted them. Snowy linen, delicate china and sparkling glass reflected the soft light from one of those great lamps such as are bought only for presentation; and beside the table, like fairies, sprang from a strange land, stood two beautiful women, robed in the delicate draperies of their bridal hour. Exclamations of surprise were drowned in a flood of tender associations, and never in palace or banquet-hall did sweeter content and happiness reign than among these four young pioneers as they sat down to their first home-served meal in the new land.

The days that followed were days of intense activity for both men and women. There was much to do, inside and out. In the interior of the little house an extraordinary change was wrought; the extra draperies and pictures relieved the bareness of the walls; shelves were built for the accommodation of many trinkets dear to the feminine heart; a rug carpet covered the centre of the floor; plinths and appetizing dishes pecked out from behind the paneled cupboards that now clothed the bare ribs of the cupboard; and a sense of homeliness pervaded the atmosphere. The two men, in their own realm, had found much to occupy them, although for some days the nature of their activities was limited owing to the necessity of giving the horses a much-needed rest before putting them back into the harness.

A week had passed, and no sign of life, other than that of the little party itself, had been seen about the Arthurs' homestead, when one day Harris's eyes already becoming keen to the prairie distances, espied a dark point on the horizon. It grew slowly from a point to a spot, from a spot to an object, and at length was defined as a man on horseback. Presently Aleck McCrae drew up at the door.

"Hello, farmers," he cried, "how goes the battle? An' the good wives? Building a little Eden in this wilderness. I'll warrant, all them put another name in the pot, an' a hungry name at that. I haven't seen a white woman's meal I don't know when."

The friends gathered about the old timer, plying him with questions which he answered or discussed until the meal was over, holding his own business quietly in the background. But with supper ended his pipe in his teeth and his feet resting comfortably in the oven, he broached his subject. "Ready for the road in the morning, Jack? Don't want to break up your little honeymoon, y' know, but the month is wearing on. Nothing but horseback for it now, an' they do say the settlers are crowding up something wonderful. The best land's going fast. Most of them will hold up now, with the roads breaking, but by slipping out on our horses we can locate an' file before the real spring rush opens. You should get some kind of shelter up before the frost is out of the ground, so's to lose no time from ploughing once the spring opens."

Harris needed no urging, and in the early morning the two men, with blankets and provisions, started out on horseback for the still farther West. The snow was now going rapidly, water steaming in a thousand pools and ponds on the face of the prairie, or ran with swift noiselessness in the creeks and ravines, although the real "break-up" of the streams would not occur until early in April. By avoiding the sleigh-trails and riding over the open prairie fairly a little footing was found for the horses and a good opportunity given to observe the land. Harris soon found that more judgment was required in the selection of a prairie farm than he had supposed, and he congratulated himself upon having fallen in with so experienced a plainsman as McCrae. On the first day they rode over mile after mile of beautiful country, following the survey stakes as closely as possible, and noting the location from time to time by lettering the posts.

"This is good enough for me," said Harris at length, as their horses crested a little elevation from which the prairie stretched away in all directions, smooth as a table. "Isn't it magnificent! And all free for the taking!"

"I'm pretty to look at," said McCrae, "but I guess you didn't come West for scenery, did you?"

"Well, what's the matter with it? Look at that grass. If the soil wasn't all right it wouldn't grow native crops like that, would it?"

"The soil's all right," answered McCrae. "Nothing better anywhere, an' you can plough a hundred and sixty acres to every quarter-section. But this is in the frost belt. They get it every August—sometimes July. Shouldn't wonder but it'll be all right in time, when the country gets settled up, but most homesteaders can't afford to wait. We've got to get further West yet, into the higher land of the Turtle Mountain slopes. I know there's good stuff there that hasn't been taken."

And so they pressed on, until, in the bright sunshine, the blue line of the Turtle Mountain lay like a lake on the western horizon. Here McCrae began paying more minute attention to the soil, examining the diggings around badger holes, watching out for clumps of every August—sometimes July. Shouldn't wonder but it'll be all right in time, when the country gets settled up, but most homesteaders can't afford to wait. We've got to get further West yet, into the higher land of the Turtle Mountain slopes. I know there's good stuff there that hasn't been taken."

"This is more rolling country, with more land broken up by sleighs an' creeks, but it's good stuff," he said. "It's early to make predictions, but I'll risk one guess. There are two classes of people coming into this country—men who are looking for wheat land, nothing but wheat land, an' men who want some wheat land an' some stock land. I predict that in twenty-five years the wheat farmers will be working for the mortgage companies, an' the stock farmers will be building up bank accounts. Now stock must have water, an' if you can get natural shelter, so much the better. A creek may break your land a little, but it's worth more than it costs."

Many times in their explorations they passed over sections that Harris would have accepted, but McCrae objected, finding always some flaw not apparent to the untrained eye. Once, where a little river had worn its way across the plain, they came on a sod shack, where a settler was already located. "Nice spot," said McCrae, "but too sandy. His farm'll blow away when he breaks the sod. There's an easy crossing there, though, an' perhaps he thinks the railway will hit him when it comes. That's all a gamble. It may go north of the lake; if it does, we only bet on the wrong horse. We've got to take our chance on that."

Vanished Power
The great Krupp gunworks has become a cemetery. The allied commission has destroyed the machinery for making engines of destruction and has done away with all partially completed weapons. The immense works have been wrecked with dynamite. Their passing is a significant symbol of the vanished power of Germany, boastfully founded as it was of "blood and iron."—Rochester Herald.

Fresh Milk in Cubes

Milk In Solid Form Readily Dissolved In Tea.

In Holland milk is now put up and sold in solid form, being made into little cubes which are readily dissolved in tea, coffee or other fluids. The milk, after removal of the cream, is reduced by heat to dryness, then powdered and mixed with the cream, the material being pressed into blocks.

These milk cubes have the advantage of preserving their freshness for a long time. They are recommended for use in regions where milk is not easily to be had, and travelers may find it convenient to carry a supply of them.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

THIS WOMAN'S MISERY

Ended by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Remarkable Recovery of Mrs. Church.

Smiths Falls, Ont.—"I suffered with falling of my organs, pains around my heart and in bowels and down my legs, neuralgia in my face and head, and that terrible sinking feeling. I felt that I could not live and would fix my house in order every night so there would be no trouble if I dropped off in the night. My husband went to the drugist to get the best remedy he had and he gave him Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took six bottles and felt a lot better. I will always recommend the Vegetable Compound, and you can use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. J. O. Church, Box 845, Smiths Falls, Ont.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from nervous prostration, displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion and dizziness. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the standard remedy for female ills.

Wheat Sixty-Six Pounds to the Bushel

Exhibitors at Edmonton Fair Had Some Good Grain

Among the exhibitors of grain at the Edmonton fair, was Mr. Price Sheppard whose entry of wheat weighed 66 pounds to the bushel. J. Strassburger, of Stony Plain, was also a prominent exhibitor in grains and vegetables. Of special interest was the exhibit of Alta Swedish red clover above which was an inscription stating that this clover which was first sown in 1915 had stood the test of six years without a single failure. This information should be of great value to the farmers as it is generally believed that red clover will not winter in Alberta, consequently, farmers do not sow this clover which is valuable not only for feed and seed, but as fertilizer. Wm. Chalmers, of Edmonton south, was the exhibitor, and he is enthusiastic in his praise of its qualities, and adaptability to the country.

Hides Do Not Figure

A provincial manufacturer assures us that the price of hides is not a factor in the cost of shoes. A prominent labor man declares that the labor cost in a pair of shoes represents only about a dollar. One must conclude that the price of an expensive pair of shoes must be caused by something like spontaneous generation.—Hamilton Herald.

How much trustworthy evidence is there to show that the hurry and the overcrowding of modern civilization push men into premature graves? Butter from the Edmonton district is in demand, and one of the largest orders ever recorded there was placed recently when Paul de Wolf of Sardis, B.C., asked Edmonton dealers to supply him with 1,000,000 pounds destined for the New York market. A million pounds' order is a big one to fill, but agents at half a dozen or more other central Alberta points are also being asked to assist in filling the order.

A WOMAN'S RIGHT TO GOOD HEALTH

Most troubles Afflicting Women Are Due to Poor Blood.

To every woman, be it the right to enjoy a healthy, active life, yet nine out of ten suffer from some form of bloodlessness. That is why one sees on every side pale, thin cheeks, dull eyes and drooping figures—sure signs of headaches, weak backs, aching limbs and uncertain health. All weak women should win the right to healthy attractive women. This new, red blood is supplied by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which reaches every organ and every nerve in the body. Through the use of these pills, thousands of women have found benefit when suffering from anaemia, indigestion, general weakness and those ailments from which women alone suffer. Among the many women who tell of the good Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done them is Mrs. L. Hicks, Round Hill, N.S., who says: "I became very much run down in health; my blood seemed weak and watery, my strength failed, and I was so easily tired that my work was a burden. I had often read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and decided to try them, and I can truly say that after using three boxes I found myself gaining, and under a further use of the pills all my old-time energy, and vitality was restored. Out of my own experience I can strongly recommend this medicine."

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Cretonne Trims Muslin Apron

By Marie Belmont.

The apron of unbleached muslin is admirable for summer wear. Many of these creations are designed so that they take the place of the house dress. The model illustrated is fashioned with short sleeves and the upper part is cut long enough to blouse over the sash of cretonne. It is really a slip-over affair as the back is closed except for a small opening at the top which allows an easy exit from its enveloping folds. A band of cretonne outlines the square cut neck as well as the sleeves and pocket. A cretonne flower decorates the front.
